

BLIZZARD

RAGING IN NEW YORK AND THE EAST

PERFECT SHEET OF SNOW FILLED THE AIR.

BLOCKED STREETS FOR HOURS

And Seriously Interfered With All Kinds of Traffic—Severest Storm of the Winter.

New York, Feb. 17.—Today New York and vicinity is in the throes of a blizzard. For hours a perfect sheet of snow filled the air and a strong breeze drifted it until the streets became blocked and all kinds of traffic seriously interfered with. The city has employed 13,000 white wings to clear the streets.

The blizzard is the worst that has visited New York for three years. In the harbor many steamers are lying at anchor until the storm clears. Ice from the rivers has packed along the Staten Island shore making navigation there dangerous if not impossible. Lewis Linn, a homeless man, was found unconscious from cold in the street by a policeman at 2 o'clock this morning. He died in an hour.

Cape May, N. J., Feb. 17.—The severest blizzard of the winter began at 11 o'clock last night and is still raging. A heavy gale of wind from the northwest brought great blankets of snow which drifted rapidly. Repeated echoes of whistles of distress or warning are heard out at sea.

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 17.—A heavy snow storm, accompanied by a forty-mile gale started in this morning at 4 o'clock and up to noon today six inches of snow had fallen. Reports from about the state indicated that the snow was drifting badly and traffic is interfered with.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 17.—A terrific gale prevails on the coast today with the wind blowing forty miles an hour. A heavy snow is falling and nothing can be seen off shore. Great fears for sailing vessels at sea are entertained. The entire coast is storm-swept and there is great suffering. Another deep snow here has taken the place of that of Saturday which was washed away by rain last night.

DANISH TREATY RATIFIED.

Washington, Feb. 17.—The bill to repeal the war tax act passed the House unexpectedly at 2:10 this afternoon. The rule to prevent discussion desired by the Democrats had been passed by party vote.

WAR TAX REPEALED.

Washington, Feb. 17.—The Senate has ratified the treaty for the purchase of the Danish West Indies unanimously.

INTO A TRAP

A British Force of Mounted Men Fall and Are Nearly All Wiped Out.

Pretoria, Feb. 17.—One hundred and fifty mounted infantry men while patrolling the Klip river south of Johannesburg February 12, surrounded a farm house where they suspected the Boers were hiding. A single Boer broke away from the house, and the British started to pursue him. The Boer climbed a kopje, the British following. Immediately a heavy fire was opened upon them from three sides. The British found themselves in a trap and in a position where they were unable to make any defense. Eight of the British officers made a gallant effort and defended the ridge with carbines and revolvers until they were overpowered. The British had two officers and ten men killed and several officers and forty men wounded before the force was able to fall back under cover of a block house.

London, Feb. 17.—According to special dispatches from Pretoria the mounted infantry entrapped at Klip river were all fresh and unused to Boer tactics. The bulk of the casualties occurred during the retreat of the British. The killed included Major Powell, the commander of the forces.

FOREST AND BIRD DAY PROVIDED FOR

Columbus, O., Feb. 17.—The House has passed the bill of Hays, of Hamilton, inaugurating a "Forest and Bird Day" in Ohio. The date is to be chosen by the governor and no instructions are given except that it must be in March. Two hours of such day are to be devoted to the public schools and state institutions to the study of forestry and the protection of birds.

WONDER

OF THE POLICE AND THE JAILERS.

IS BEAUTIFUL FLORENCE BURNS, ACCUSED OF MURDERING HER SWEETHEART.

Stoutly Maintains Her Innocence—Sang in Choir at Religious Services in the Tombs.

New York, Feb. 17.—Florence Burns the young and beautiful Brooklyn girl who is accused of murdering her sweetheart, Walter S. Brooks, in the Glen Island hotel is the wonder of the police and her jailers in the Tombs prison.

From the moment of her arrest she has displayed a calmness that is astonishing, considering her situation. Saturday night, her first in a cell, she slept soundly. In court yesterday she preserved a cool demeanor until her mother informed her that Brooks was dead.

This fact has been kept from her by the police.

"You don't think I killed him, do you, mamma?" and her voice shook with emotion.

The mother assured the girl that she was confident of her innocence and the accused girl quickly recovered her composure.

At the religious services in the Tombs yesterday the girl assisted the quartette choir. She has a sweet soprano voice. Miss Burns will have another hearing Tuesday. Her counsel and relatives claim they can prove a strong alibi and that witnesses will be brought forward who saw her near her Brooklyn home at 7 o'clock Friday evening the time when others say they saw her in Brooks' company. The girl in the face of a searching examination by the police and an assistant district attorney, has maintained her innocence.

"I know nothing about any shooting," has been her simple reply.

Brooks, the victim of the tragedy, will be buried tomorrow. His parents are heartbroken. He was an only son.

Miss Burns, the alleged murderess, is a tall, stately blonde. Her blue eyes give her pretty face a babyish, innocent look. Her father, formerly a promoter of athletic events and now an insurance broker, has always earned a good income. He gave his daughter a fairly good education and a comfortable home. She met Walter S. Brooks about a year ago. Broad-shouldered and handsome, with winning ways, it was no surprise to find the old story repeated in their case. They were too young to marry, but the boy was not too young, according to stories told, to tarnish her fair name. Estrangement from her parents followed and for a time she left her father's home.

Recently there was a reconciliation and the girl returned to her parents. It was her desire and that of her parents so it is said, that young Brooks marry her. His refusal to do so, it is the theory of the police, precipitated the murder.

It doesn't do a man any good to know the ropes if he hasn't got a pull.

TRI-MOTOR

NAME OF A TOLEDO MAN'S NEW INVENTION

STEAM ENGINE, STEAM BOILER AND GAS ENGINE

ALL COMBINED IN ONE DEVICE.

Inventor Claims It Will Revolutionize Travel—May Also be Used to Heat Buildings.

Toledo, O., Feb. 17.—In the mechanical department of the Toledo foundry and machine works on Cherry street, a device has been under construction for the past three months, which its builder sincerely believes will turn the mechanical world upside down. He says that to imagine a locomotive without a boiler, without a smokestack and without a tender and without a fire box traveling at a speed of 60 miles an hour will be easy if the device now under construction by William Heckert of Findlay, pans out successfully. Mr. Heckert the inventor and patentee of this wonderful contrivance, calls it a tri-motor, so named because it is a steam engine, a gas engine and a steam boiler all combined in one. Only one skilled in mechanics can describe the new invention so that it will be understood by the reading public.

After describing his invention in detail, Colonel Heckert proceeded to explain in what manner it was going to revolutionize the entire locomotive power of the world.

"Take an ocean vessel, for instance," said he. "By the use of the tri-motor a vessel can be propelled without the aid of coal. That necessarily means that there will be no bunkers, boilers nor smokestacks.

"Think of the millions and millions of dollars that will be saved by the steamboat companies as well as the railroad companies. The scope of this invention cannot be told in few words. "Then there's the trolley car. With the tri-motor the street cars will be run without the bothersome trolley, and the car can be operated just as easily as it is today.

"Aside from what I have mentioned, the motor can be put to another use—that of heating residences, office buildings and factories in the place of the present methods of heating.

"There's not a spark of doubt in my mind that my invention will perform all the functions I claim for it, and I am satisfied that I have the discovery of the age," concluded the speaker.

Incidentally it may be said that Col. Heckert is the inventor of the little hooks that are found on most pairs of shoes on the market. He sold the rights to it several years ago, and the present owners have made millions out of it. Interested with Colonel Heckert in the motor enterprise is Judge Henry W. Seney, the well known Toledo Attorney and member of the law firm of Seney & Johnson.

WOMAN DISTURBER

Arrested in Columbus for Disorderly Conduct and Charged With Distributing Obscene Literature.

Columbus, O., Feb. 17.—Margaret L. Sheppard was arrested yesterday at the Odd Fellows Temple where she was about to lecture, on two warrants, one charging disorderly conduct and the other the selling or distributing of obscene literature. The hall was crowded and there was much excitement, but no attempt was made to interfere with the officers. The woman gave bond for her appearance.

The warrants were sworn out by representatives of two local Catholic orders. Mrs. Sheppard's lecture announced for last night was cancelled but she declares her intention to remain in the city and fight the charges. She claims to have been a nun, but has renounced the Roman faith. The literature sold by her, which is alleged to be obscene, is claimed by her to be an exposure of certain Catholic religious orders.

DIGGING FOR DEAD IN SHAMAKA RUINS.

Already 300 Bodies Have Been Taken Out and 25,000 Persons Are Homeless.

Tiflis, Russian Transcaucasia, Feb. 17.—Two hundred bodies of victims of the earthquake, which destroyed the town of Shamaka, had been recovered up to last evening. It appears certain that several hundred bodies are buried in the fissures and debris caused by the shocks. The quakes continue at intervals, and the work of excavating in search of the victims proceeds with difficulty. Among the dead are many women, who at the time of the practical shock, were congregated at the public bath-houses.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 17.—The latest news received here from Shamaka confirms the appalling character of the earthquake at the place, and adds that 300 corpses have already been taken out of the ruins. The piles of wreckage are so vast that the search is necessarily slow.

Most of the victims were Musselmans. The survivors are encamped outside the ruins of the city.

Baku, Russian Transcaucasia, Feb. 17.—The district headman of Shamaka telegraphed that the town is now almost completely destroyed, only a dozen houses being left standing, and that the loss of life was very great. The church, the mosque, and the barracks and treasury were destroyed. Twenty-five thousand inhabitants are without food and shelter. The shocks continued.

Besides Shamaka, 21 villages in the district have been practically destroyed.

TILDEN DINNER

GIVEN BY THE DEMOCRACY OF NEW YORK.

Blazing Out a Path for the Future Success of the Party of the Nation.

New York, Feb. 17.—Edward M. Shepard was honored at the Tilden dinner given Saturday night in the Germania Club, Brooklyn, by the Brooklyn Democratic Club with a view of blazing out a path to success for the Democratic National party.

Lewis Nixon was one of the speakers, and was greeted with much applause. He made a significant remark. It was:

"We want the organization in Manhattan Island where it deserves to stand, not as a Democratic organization, but as the Democratic organization."

"And we are ready to reach out the hand of fellowship to the Democracy of Brooklyn, and with the rest of the state form a triple alliance which will be invincible."

A letter from David B. Hill contained a significant word of praise for Mr. Nixon and for Mr. Shepard. His tribute was this:

"The recent accession to the leaders of Tammany Hall of such a clean and intelligent gentleman as Lewis Nixon, and the welcome political activity and renewed interest in Democracy in the Borough of Brooklyn of such a capable citizen as the honored vice president of your club, Edward M. Shepard, are among the auspicious omens of the times, full of encouragement and hope."

There was a letter from Grover Cleveland as the embodiment of the spirit of old line Democracy; a note of regret from Wm. J. Bryan, with a Commemorative editorial for a sentiment. Other letters were received from Representative Hay, of Virginia, Richard Oney, Norman E. Mack and Hugh McLaughlin.

CRAZED MOTHER

Suicides by Shooting Herself in the Head—Cause, Accidental Death of Her Baby.

Toledo, O., Feb. 17.—The twenty-two year old wife of Dr. Fred Kumerlinz, of Blissfield, Mich., shot herself in the head this morning, death being instantaneous. Yesterday her infant child fell from a high chair and received injuries which proved fatal in a short time. The young mother became crazed and her suicide was the sequel.

STORY

OF CANNIBALISM AND ITS HORRORS

TOLD BY SURVIVORS OF FRENCH EXPLORING EXPEDITION.

KILLED, ROASTED AND EATEN.

Was a Comrade When Survivors Regained Consciousness—Timely Rescue Dispersed Natives.

Paris, Feb. 17.—La Patrie publishes a letter received from its correspondent, M. Rouyer, a survivor of the massacre of a French scientific mission by cannibals at Sileraka, New Guinea, January 1.

M. Rouyer relates that the yacht Salvati with the mission on board had anchored off the coast of New Guinea, and that several of the explorers landed. After an apparently friendly reception from the natives the latter treacherously attacked them during the night, murdering twenty-five of the party, including Baron Villars, Count de Saint Remy and Mr. Hagenbock and Vries, and wounding thirty-three, including the writer of the letter. Mr. Rouyer, the chief of the mission, and another Frenchman named Reimer, M. Rouyer writes:

"We were all sleeping peacefully when there was a great uproar and we were attacked by hundreds of natives carrying torches. Several of us were felled to the ground with clubs, hatchets and spears. Others were overpowered, carried away and bound to the trees. I was among this number. I received a blow on the head from a club and fainted. When I recovered, consciousness at 5 o'clock in the morning I found myself tied hand and foot and surrounded by savages, who, believing me to be dead, were keeping me for themselves. I saw the body of Baron Villars near me bound to a tree. His body was naked, his head had been split open, his eyes had been gouged out and his groin was horribly mutilated. The Count de Saint Remy had been decapitated and his head stuck on the end of a spear as a trophy. M. Hagenbock was being roasted over a fire. The savages were about to cut him up. I waited my fate. I was afraid to move. My head hurt me dreadfully. Around me the ground was strewn with corpses.

"Suddenly a great clamor arose, followed by a fusillade. I opened my eyes and saw Dr. Foster and the remainder of the mission from the yacht firing on the cannibals. I shouted and the rescuers ran to me and cut the bonds which bound me to the tree. The cannibals fled, leaving 32 dead. The clothes of M. Vries were found, but his body was missing. He had evidently been devoured by the savages during the night."

MISS ROOSEVELT

To Be Honored by German Kaiser When She Attends King Edward's Coronation.

London, Feb. 17.—It is stated in American circles here that when Miss Roosevelt comes over to attend the coronation of King Edward she will proceed to Germany as the guest of Ambassador White at Berlin. This will be done at the suggestion of the Kaiser, who is anxious to show impartial hospitality to the President's daughter, whose charming personality is so closely identified with the present Anglo-American entente. The launching of the emperor's new yacht and the visit of Prince Henry to the United States.

To each of five foremen and six headmen of the counting room $500 is left, to each of 220 married men Mr. Tufts gives $250 and to eighty single men he gives $100 each.

Advice is usually given to people who don't heed it.

AID TO THE BOERS GIVEN BY GERMANS

Berlin, Feb. 17.—The German Boer Relief committee has voted an immediate grant of 300,000 marks, ($73,000), half in cash and half in material comforts, for the use of the Boers in the concentration camps of South Africa.

JOLLY SLEIGHING PARTY.

A jolly sleigh ride in one of Hurbaugh's big "Yankee" jumpers was indulged in on Monday night by a crowd of young people of this city, and an enjoyable time was had by all who were so fortunate as to be included in the party, which was made up as follows: Misses Florence Lohgren, Lillian Heim, Grace Shacklet, Bessie Black, Lizzie Yantz, Blanche Snyder and Messrs. Chas. Heim, Frank Gelly, Frank Lindner, Will Davis, Cary Varner, Will Smith and Guy Hoffman.

YOUNG GIRL

OF ONLY FOURTEEN YEARS HELD PRISONER

AND CRIMINALLY ASSAULTED BY SEVERAL MEN.

Shocking Cleveland Scandal. Policeman Under Arrest Charged With Being a Party to the Shameful Crime.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 17.—Patrolman James Lynch was arrested yesterday charged with assaulting Dorothy Ames, a fourteen year old girl who has been missing from her home for a week. According to the girl's story she had been lured to a dance hall and held prisoner there in an upper room for a week. The police had been searching for her and did not find her until Friday night, when the girl was seen walking aimlessly about the down town streets, suffering from the effects of liquor. Lynch is said to have been picked out from twenty of his fellow policemen and accused by the girl of being one of those who assaulted her. Lynch is locked up in central headquarters.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 17.—Each additional development in the case of Dorothy Ames, the 14 year old girl who is said to have been held prisoner for six days in a house of ill repute alleged to have been run by Leo Malanowski above his saloon, No. 2665 Broadway, reveals a shocking story of crime. The girl was found on the street Saturday night.

The police have now in custody Malanowski himself, charged with keeping a house of ill repute and procuring; James Lynch, a patrolman of the seventh precinct charged with criminal assault; Henry A. Smigel, a drugist living at No. 12 Colorado street, charged with criminal assault; Alfred S. Howard, of No. 216 Miles avenue, a street car conductor, charged with procuring; and Lena Draves, aged 15 years, charged with being a common person.

Only one of the prisoners, Smigel, succeeded in obtaining bail yesterday. On account of the extreme gravity of the offense charged the amount of his bond was placed at $5,000.

The case offers one of the blackest pages in Cleveland criminal history. It is all the more shocking that one, who is alleged to be among the most gentle should be a man employed by the municipality and wearing a uniform which in itself should insure protection. How many more arrests will follow it is impossible to say, but the police are thoroughly aroused, and say that no stone will be left unturned until everyone implicated in the hideous affair has been brought to justice.

Last night all of the prisoners were taken out of the central police station one by one, and put through the "revealing" process before Deputy Saint Rowe, Lieut. Boyle and Sergeant of Detectives Moran.

The detailed story of the experience as told by Dorothy Ames is horrible and unprintable. When Lynch was arrested Dorothy picked him out from a line of 15 patrolmen, identifying him by a red birthmark on the back of his hand.

ONE TERM

IN THE PENITENTIARY OF WYOMING

SERVED BY TEDDY'S APPOINTEE FOR U. S. MARSHAL.

DANIELS HIMSELF ADMITS IT

But It Was Twenty-five Years Ago. Claims He Has Been Honest Ever Since.

Washington, Feb. 17.—A well sustained report is that former Representative R. E. Doan, of Ohio, has handed to President Roosevelt a letter from Ben Daniels, whose commission as United States Marshal of Arizona has been held up, in which Mr. Daniels admits the truth of the report that 25 years ago he served a term in the Wyoming penitentiary for larceny. He makes a plea for consideration on the ground that he has led a perfectly honest life since that time. He says the business men of Arizona have confidence in him, and the only ones who oppose his selection as Marshal of the Territory are preachers and political opponents. Mr. Doan, whose son is Collector of Internal Revenue at Nogales, and who has a high regard for Daniels, submitted to the President, a number of endorsements of Daniels from leading business men of the territory. It is understood that Daniels is coming to Washington, to see the President personally.

Dayton Hospital Trustee.

Columbus, O., Feb. 17.—Governor Nash this morning received a letter from ex-Congressman H. L. Morey, withdrawing his resignation as a trustee of the Dayton state hospital. Just after Morey was appointed as one of the new hospital trustees, to succeed a removed member. He was made co-spendent in a Hamilton divorce suit. To relieve Governor Nash of embarrassment Morey offered his resignation. Governor Nash wrote Morey saying he believed he was innocent of the charge and asked that the resignation be withdrawn.

BIG STRIKE

Pending of the Brewers of Three Cities, in Which 2500 Men are Involved.

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 17.—The brewers of Cincinnati, Covington and Newport now say that their workmen are expected to strike next Saturday.

About 2,500 workmen are involved and a conference yesterday of labor and parties failed to result. National officers of the respective unions have been working here in vain. The trouble comes from the dispute between the United Brewery workers and the Stationary Engineers' union and to which of them shall have control and jurisdiction over the engineers and the firemen who are employed in the various breweries of the three cities. The Brewery Workers insist that these engineers and firemen must organize as a subordinate organization of the brewery workers' organization and the Engineers' union claims that the brewery engineers like all other stationary engineers come under its jurisdiction and must belong to it while the firemen must be members of the firemen's union which is affiliated with the engineers' international union.

Another Murder Mystery.

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 17.—Another mystery apparently as perplexing as the murder of Nina Baker, a domestic employed in a San Francisco hotel, was solved by a San Francisco police man who discovered that the body of the woman was hidden in a closet at her left side and shot her down. He then disappeared over the Sand Hills, leaving no trace. The girl probably will die. It is no sign that the weather man is in poor health when the climate doesn't agree with him.

The Canal Question.

The time set for the hearing of the bill for the abandonment of the Ohio canals, prepared by Attorney General Sheets, introduced by Mr. Painter of Wood county, is tomorrow, the 18th, and a big lobby for and against the proposed legislation is expected to be on hand. It is probable that a number from Newark will be present to protest against the passage of the bill.

The proposition to abandon the canal waterways is not a new one in the Ohio Legislature, but the present movement is better organized and much more formidable than any previous ones. The arguments advanced by those who want the canals abandoned, are, that they are a burden to the taxpayers and are no longer of any account, but it would be well for the lawmakers to thoroughly investigate the source of these arguments before deciding to do away with these waterways.

Saturday's Enquirer carried an editorial upon the subject generally, but with special reference to the Miami and Erie canal, which runs from Cincinnati to Toledo. In advising the members of the legislature to go slow in this matter it says:

"A word to these gentlemen. Let them not be led away from duty by the specious but pernicious representations of men who are interested in the demolition of water transportation. Let them remember that the popular idea is that 'abandonment' is merely another name for robbery. The gentlemen who are casually meeting them and pouring into their ears stories of how canals are eating up taxpayers want to take these waterways for the railroads. They are anxious to remove them, not only as a means of destroying competition, but they want to use the canal beds for railroad purposes. They want to be presented with graded rights of way. Care is taken to restrain comment as to what is to be done with the canal beds after abandonment. The schemers do not want to present that feature of the case at this stage of their calculations.

"While other states that have canal systems are fostering them, and the whole world is agitated over the construction of a water way between the two great oceans, this state cannot give up the splendid canal she possesses without throwing many of her public men under suspicion."

The Ohio canal which runs through Newark from Cleveland to Portsmouth, is as important to the eastern part of the state as the Miami and Erie canal is to the western.

Every manufacturing industry in Newark near the canal, including the B. & O. railroad shops, Thomas Foundry, Schneider's Machine Works, McNamara's factory, the Paper Mill, Moser & Wehrle's and others, depend upon the canal for their water supply. It would mean irreparable loss to them to cut off this present supply of good soft water for their boilers. It is true that the fees paid to the state for this water are little more than nominal, but yet enough to make the canal through Newark more than self-sustaining.

The Buckeye Lake road at Hebron is also dependent for a supply of water at their power house on the canal. Besides these facts it is patent to every one that the Ohio canal could be made one of the greatest artificial rivers in the world, running as it does through a great wealth-producing section of the State. The canal could be used most advantageously for shipment of all heavy freight at greatly reduced rates, and in one bulk.

There is apprehension that the abandonment of the canal means ultimately the abandonment of Buckeye Lake. This would result disastrously to the latest and best enterprise that has come to Newark, and that is the splendid new interurban electric line connecting our city and county with Columbus—the Columbus, Buckeye Lake and Newark traction railway. Nothing should be done to endanger or in any way embarrass this valuable enterprise for Newark and Licking county.

ORGANIZATION

The New and Highly Important Movement Started by the Ohio Democracy.

The movement recently inaugurated by the Democratic State Central Committee in appointing a committee on organization is certainly a step in the right direction.

The party will hereafter maintain permanent headquarters in the city of Columbus in charge of persons who will be in attendance constantly, whose duty it will be to perfect and maintain a thorough organization of the Democratic voters of Ohio.

Every Democrat believes and knows that the principles of Democracy are eternal, that its platforms are right, and that it adopted and carried out its doctrines would subvert the best interests of the Republic.

But experience teaches us that no matter how true, just or equitable our principles and platform may be, without organization, victory is impossible. And without victory at the polls our efforts are unavailing.

It is the aim and purpose of the Committee recently appointed to secure an organization sufficiently perfect to bring the principles of Democracy to the attention of every voter in the State. If this can be accomplished, Ohio will not long remain in the Republican column.

A careful consideration of the personal of the committee convinces us of the fact that it is not and can not be controlled by any man or faction, that its members are not actuated by any selfish or ulterior motive but prompted solely by a desire to advance the principles of Democracy and to achieve success for the Democratic party.

In its efforts to secure a perfect organization the committee is entitled to and should receive the active and enthusiastic support of every Democrat in the state.

It is the immediate desire of the Committee to secure an organization composed of two active Democrats in each precinct in addition to the regularly elected committeemen. The County Central Committee should see to it that such an organization for Licking county is perfected and reported to the state committee as soon as possible. Great care should be exercised by the committeemen in selecting the two members of the organization in the various precincts; they should be men who are both able and willing to attend to the work and who in accepting the appointment will do so with but one end in view—the success of the Democratic party.

We sincerely hope that with the assistance of the State Committee that Licking county will go into the next campaign with an organization second to none.

Let every Democrat go to work at once, and in perfecting a thorough organization of his ward or precinct, and then let us go into the next campaign as a united, organized, disciplined army, with Harmony as our watchword, and Victory as our goal.

With the completion of the Trans-Siberian railroad Russia makes her entry as a competitor in the European butter trade, and is carrying everything before her. In 1899 the Russian product in the London markets was too small for separate classification; in two years it had jumped to the second place, Denmark holding the first, as she has long done. The Trans-Siberian butter trains, one a week, leave Ohio, stop at six other centers of the industry and arrive at the Baltic port of Riga after a journey of 17 days. A steamship line with cold storage service conveys the product on to London, where it competes successfully with the best European brands, those of Denmark, Ireland and Norway. The trade has only begun, but its promise for the future is enormous, and the butter market of the world, of which London is the center, will henceforth feel the force of a new factor and a new source of production of practically limitless extent.

As defined by the foreign secretary in the British parliament, the alliance of Great Britain and Japan, bearing directly on what are supposed to be Russian aims as to Manchuria and Korea, "would compel Great Britain to come to the rescue of a friendly country whose obliteration by a coalition of the powers Great Britain could not under any circumstances tolerate." That is all very well until applied to South Africa, where Great Britain is engaged in obliterating the two republics.

BOWSER'S ANTIQUE.

HE GETS A RELIC IN THE SHAPE OF A RARE COLONIAL BUREAU.

Makes a Purchase of It to Please His Wife, but His Wrath Rises High When She is Skeptical and Refuses to Entertain It.

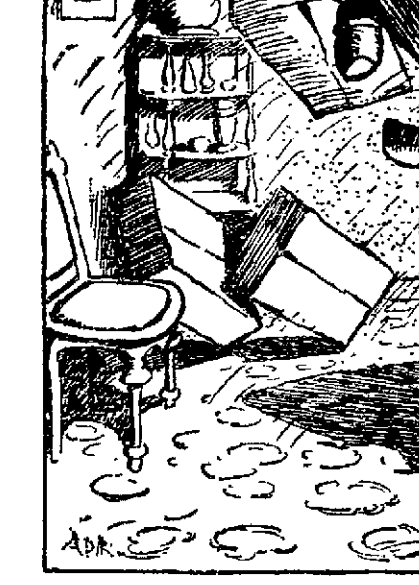

(Copyright, 1932, by C. B. Lewis.)

WHEN Mr. Bowser was half way home the other evening, he suddenly remembered that he ought to buy a box of shoeblacking, and he left the car and stepped into a grocery. While he was being waited upon his eye caught sight of a bureau in the back end of the store, with drawers filled with potatoes, and after looking the affair over he asked with pretended carelessness: "How does it happen that you have such a piece of furniture in here?" "I took it on a debt of 50 cents," replied the grocer.

"And I suppose you'll sell it for a dollar?"

"If you want that bureau for a dollar, it's yours, and I will also deliver it."

There was a struggle with conscience on the part of Mr. Bowser for a minute. No sooner had he set eyes on that bureau than he identified it as belonging to the colonial period and worth its weight in silver as an antique.

SHE WAS AROUSED BY A CRASHING AND SMASHING.

The grocer simply regarded it as so much old rubbish and would be satisfied with a profit of 100 per cent. Should he take advantage of the ignorance of the dealer in sugar and codfish, or should he give him honest information and plank down $20 in place of $1? Conscience took a back seat, and the purchase was concluded at the dealer's own figure. Any grocer who will dabase an old heirloom by filling it full of potatoes deserves to be swindled in its sale. The minute that Mr. Bowser reached home Mrs. Bowser felt sure that something had happened, and though she asked no questions, his nervous demeanor at the dinner table strengthened her belief. After the meal was finished he had an excuse to go to the front door every five minutes, and when a wagon at last drove up he went out to assist the boy in lifting the awe to stand in the presence of this old relic?"

Mrs. Bowser's face looked serious enough, but she didn't admit the awe, and he presently asked:

"What's the matter with you? I thought you'd jump over chairs when you saw this relic. Think of a piece of furniture a hundred years old, maybe a hundred and fifty! Where now is the colonial dame whose hands once folded away her clothes in those drawers? Do you suppose it ever crossed her mind that your hands would some day touch these time-begrimed handles?"

"I don't think it ever did," replied Mrs. Bowser as she backed into the sitting room. "I wish I could have seen the bureau before you bought it."

"For what reason?"

"Because it isn't a colonial. It's only soft wood veneered over, while all the colonial pieces are solid. The bureau we saw at Mount Vernon was mahogany. It's simply an old ticky piece of furniture you've brought home. Examine it for yourself."

"And this is what I get for picking up an almost priceless antiquity!" he gasped.

"It's not an antiquity, Mr. Bowser. It's simply a common old bureau and was probably sold for about $5 in the first place. Why do you buy things in this haphazard way?"

"Haphazard! Do you mean to tell me I don't know an old antique when I see one? When I run across an old colonial, have I got to trot home and ask you to go and look it over for fear I'll be deceived? When or where did you post yourself about antiques?"

"When or where did you?" she quietly asked.

"You hear me now—you hear me!" he shouted when he found himself boxed up. "By the jumping Jim Crow, if the whole household furniture of Benjamin Franklin should be offered me for 10 cents I wouldn't buy it! For ten long years I've been looking out for a Martha Washington bureau to please you, and now that by the rarest chance on earth I finally pick one up you dub it old rubbish and insist that I'm a fool."

"It was kind of you, but you see—"

"I see nothing," he yelled as he cut loose—"that is, I do! I see that you've got about as much sentiment about you as an old sitting hen and that I ought to have brought you up a basket of clams instead. We won't discuss the matter further. I'll sell the bureau tomorrow for $500. Perhaps you had rather be alone with yourself?"

Mrs. Bowser arose with a sigh and went up stairs, and when bedtime came she went to bed. It had come midnight and she was asleep when she was aroused by a crashing and smashing below. For two or three minutes it seemed as if the whole interior of the house was being torn out. Then the sounds ceased, a pungent dust came floating up, and she heard Mr. Bowser swearing to himself. Then she knew that the old colonial relic was no more on earth. M. QUAD.

DEADWOOD COACH.

Noted Vehicle of Overland Mail Days
May Become One of National Museum Curios.

(Baltimore Sun.)

Colonel W. F. Cody, known over the world as "Buffalo Bill," is considering the advisability of presenting his famous Deadwood coach to the National Museum. He is in Washington for few days in the interest of irrigation of the arid wastes of Wyoming and other states of the West, and has been a familiar figure at the capitol this week. This morning he visited the National Museum and had a long talk with several officials of the institution.

When seen by the Sun correspondent at the New Willard he admitted that the object of his visit to the museum was to confer with the officials regarding a proposition to have him donate the coach to the collection. In the past few months the museum authorities have corresponded with him about the coach, but he has been loath to part with it, although he desires ultimately to present it to an institution. Before he heard from the National Museum he contemplated having large glass case made, in which he might store the bullet riddled old vehicle at his home at Cody, Wyoming.

"I have not reached any decision regarding the donation," said Colonel Cody this afternoon. "After I return to Wyoming I will do so."

"Strangely enough," Colonel Cody said, "the National Museum has no stage coach of the type used in the West years ago in its wonderful collection of locomotives and vehicles of transportation. There is an old practical schooler, but no stage coach. They are getting scarce now. I have seven or eight of them, but none so historic and interesting as the old Deadwood coach. In addition to the fact that it figured in many thrilling affairs in the West, it has a doubly interesting history from the fact that every crowned head of Europe has ridden within or upon it.

"The Deadwood coach," he continued, "is one of the old Concord type. It was built in 1863 by Abbot Downey & Co. of Concord, Vt. It is numbered, and the records show it was shipped around the Horn to California. It was one of 500 contracted for in that year. Trace of it was lost for some time. In 11 years it had worked its way eastward across the country from California to Wyoming, where it was found running in 1874 on the stage line between Cheyenne, Wyo., and the Black Hills, South Dakota. At that time it was a 'treasure coach.' In 1874, '75 and '76 it was used to transport gold from the Black Hills mines to the Union Pacific railroad. On that route it figured in many fights with the Sioux Indians, the greatest of which was in the early spring of 1876, during what was known as the Hat Creek or Bonnet Creek fight. The coach was attacked by some of the younger Sioux Indians and 11 men were killed defending the coach within and without the vehicle. I wanted a historic coach and picked up the Deadwood coach, which was practically abandoned soon after the Bonnet Creek fight."

Colonel Cody referred to the contrasts in the life of the old vehicle. A democratic institution in every respect typically American and identified with one of the most interesting pages of American history, the development of the West, it had served as a coach for the crowned heads of monarchial Europe and ranked with the royal coaches of the continent as a relic.

"The Princess of Wales, now Queen Alexandra," said Colonel Cody, "was the first royal personage to ride in it. She set the fashion." Her innovations have for years been followed all over England. In the year 1887, when the show was in England, she expressed a desire to occupy a seat in the coach. Her request was granted. With her were her two sons and two daughters. I drove the horses. This started a fad and all the time we were in England members of the nobility and royalty rode in the coach. We booked engagements for weeks ahead.

"On another occasion the Prince of Wales 'commanded' that I drive the coach for four gentlemen who were examining it curiously. The gentlemen entered while I mounted to the box. The Prince of Wales asked to be allowed to sit beside me while I drove. A band of my Sioux Indians chased us around the inclosure and the entire party of five enjoyed the experience wonderfully. After the ride the Prince of Wales said to me, 'I suppose you never before had the pleasure holding four kings?' This reference to the national game led me to reply: 'Yes,' I have often held four kings, but never four kings with the royal joker at the same time. I was introduced to the four distinguished persons who rode in the coach. They were Leopold, King of the Belgians, the King of Saxony, King George of Greece and King Oscar of Norway and Sweden."

WRITES OF ARKANSAS HUNTING TRIP.

Rain, Sleet and Snow Plentiful in the South—Mound Builders—An Interesting Letter.

Mr. Mont M. Miller who is now at Swan Island, Fifteen Mile Bayou, Arkansas, writes as follows:

Thinking that some of your numerous readers would like to hear from one who is now in camp Tent, and on a hunting trip, I will jot down a few items that will be of interest to them. This island contains about 40,000 acres, with the following timber: ash, oak, hackberry, sweet gum, cypress, pecan and mulberry, some very good. The game is deer, bear, wild cat, wild turkey, wolves, green ducks, coon, possum, squirrels and rabbits. I arrived here on Friday after a long trudge through briars, brush and cane, about five miles from Democrat P. O. Found Mr. Minnick and Mr. Norman ready to meet me and after supper concluded to get an early start on the next morning for deer hunt; so we got up before daybreak and started to the deer stands, Mr. Norman taking the two hounds, Rox and Rip. We started and hunted until 1 p. m. when Mr. Minnick killed a fine young buck. Returning to camp a rain set in and it rained all night and Sunday night it began to sleet and has not stopped yet. The trees are covered with ice which makes it very dangerous to man and beast, as the large trees and limbs are falling all the time and one must keep a sharp outlook. Yesterday we had to send to the settlement for more provisions and selected Mr. Norman, but the streams and bayous were so swollen we were compelled to haul a dugout 16 feet long over the snow and ice through the woods three miles so that he could cross 15 Mile Bayou to make Democrat P. O. This is a part of St. Francis bottoms soil, very rich, grows cotton and corn, but would grow almost anything that one would care to plant. The natives use only a one-horse turning plow to do their plowing. There are 40 darkeys to one white man in the bottoms.

Forest City is the county seat, population 3000. Iron Mountain and Choctaw railroad. Every thing here is "to carry." For instance, you are carried to jail by the marshal, or you carry your wife to town, or the circus, as the case may be. We can hear the grey timber wolves howling about our camp every night, but they do not come in sight. My camp partners have hung up about the tent pelts of wild cat, coon, deer, ducks wild turkey and possum, and although bound in by water and cannot get to the settlement we have plenty to eat.

These bottoms certainly at one time were the home of the prehistoric mound builders, as there are mounds all over the settlement. Some, I am told, are 60 feet high and where they have taken the earth or sand, left spaces, which are now small lakes. I believe the State Archaeological society would do well to investigate and open up some of these mounds. There has been pottery in the shape of urns, cups and mortars with characters on them taken out, which if deciphered, might lead to a better history of that extinct race. The owners of the land would willingly help and welcome any one who would investigate the contents of these mounds. The only person on this island in camp, outside of our party of three is a Mr. Calhoun, who has a little shack about one mile from here. He claims to be a descendant of the great Nullifier, John C.

The stock raisers should make money here in cattle and hogs, as they do not cost anything for feed from the time they are weaned until they are shipped to market. One gentleman told me he had 500 head of cattle over one-half three or four year old steers, that had not cost him one dollar each; all he had given them was salt every two or three weeks. So there must be some profit in that business. I will try to write you again. We have had now eight days of rain and snow, making the hunting very bad.

A HINT TO A BOASTER

(Original.)

Dick Spier was one of those men who could jump higher, run faster, dive deeper and come out drier than any other man in the wide world. At any rate, stories were never swapped between him and his friends but Dick's experiences overtopped those of any other one of the party. At a gathering one evening he told how he had during the previous summer taken more weakfish on the New Jersey coast than any man of his party and during the autumn following had killed more deer in the Adirondacks than any of his fellow companions.

"What can we do to stop this boasting?" said Stephen Burd to Phil Wentworth, a Cornell man who was fitting himself to be a mechanical and electrical engineer.

"I think I have a plan," replied Wentworth. "Leave him to me."

"Dick," he said, "did you ever fish for pickerel in Amber lake?"

"Did I? Last summer I landed fifty pounds in an hour and forty-three minutes."

"They're gamy. You can't land all you take."

"I can land five out of every six I get on my hook."

"That's a big average. I think I can do pretty well at landing pickerel, but I don't know that I could average up to that."

Wentworth winked at Burd, who plainly understood that he was to trap Spier into a contest.

"Dick," said Burd, "I'll bet you a cent that Phil Wentworth can land more pickerel on Amber lake in a given space of time than you can."

"Why not make it a champagne supper?" said Spier.

"I'm opposed to betting for stakes of value."

The next Saturday afternoon the party were in a fishing boat on Amber lake. They began at 2 o'clock, and the match was to last till 4. The man who lost the most fish off his line was to be the loser. Spier caught three fish and landed them all. Then he hooked a pickerel and lost it. Wentworth hooked one and landed it. About this time the pickerel came in such quantities that either of the contestants had but to throw in his line to hook a fish. Spier lost one out of every three, while Wentworth landed every fish he hooked. The fish fought nobly for their lives, but just as those on Wentworth's hook seemed about to get away they would suddenly turn over and cease to struggle.

"What's the matter with you, Dick?" cried Burd. "Seems to me you're not handling them with your usual skill. You're not going to land fifty pounds in an hour and forty-three minutes this time."

"I'm handing one in six now, and any expert fisherman will tell you that's a first rate average."

"But Phil is landing every one he hooks. How do you do it, Phil?"

"Science," replied Wentworth. "Science!" exclaimed his disgruntled opponent. "I believe you have some way of bewitching the fish."

"What kind of a reel is that you're using, Wentworth?" asked one of the party.

"One of my own invention."

As he spoke a pickerel took his hook and ran away with it, bending the pole to a letter U.

"That's a strong line of yours," said Spier, disappointed that it did not break.

The fish struggled fiercely and at last broke the pole, the only weak part of the tackle. All expected to see him get away, when suddenly, like his brothers, he was landed.

"Give it up, Dick," said Burd. "You've lost five fish, and Wentworth hasn't lost one."

"I've landed the average, and Wentworth has worked a miracle. However, I'm beaten, and I insist on paying for the supper."

"You haven't lost a supper," put in Wentworth.

"All I want to know," said Spier, "is whether you landed those pickerel scientifically or whether there was some trick about it."

"I give you my word it was by pure science."

The party retired to the Rod and Gun club, where a supper was ordered, it being agreed that which of the contestants should pay for it was to be decided by vote of the party. When the festivities were at their height, Burd spoke for silence and asked Wentworth how he managed to land so many pickerel.

"If Spier will consent to play fish," replied Wentworth. "I'll give him a practical demonstration."

"All right," said Spier. "Go ahead." Calling for his rod and line, Wentworth filed the point of the hook blunt and tossed the hook across the table to Spier.

"Put it in your mouth," he said. Spier did as he was bid. Wentworth pressed his thumb on a certain spot of the pole just below the reel, whereupon Spier gave a yell, seized the hook and took it out of his mouth in a hurry.

"What does it all mean?" cried several at once.

"It means this," said Wentworth. "This reel contains a galvanic battery. My line is a fine steel wire, very flexible and strong enough to bear a twenty pound jerk. When I get my fish hooked, all I have to do is to press a concealed button, here, to make the circuit and paralyze the fish."

There was an explosion of laughter at Spier's expense, but by prearrangement the party voted that the conspirators should pay for the supper. Spier took the hint, and from that time forth was more modest in his statements.

PATERSON AS IT WAS.

Fire Stricken City Noted For Its Silk Mills.

Pateron, N. J., which has just been laid waste by a terrific fire, has, according to the last census, about 100,000 inhabitants, but recent growth has probably increased this a couple of thousands. The principal industry is silkmaking, which gives it the name of Silk City, says the New York Times. There are about forty mills of sufficient size to be classed as such. Besides these there are many small plants employing from four to twenty persons which work on the various lines of the business. The dyeing is largely done in these small shops. More than half the population depends upon the silk trade.

The Barbour Thread works and the locomotive works are the other two important sources of employment. Only a few months ago the city was threatened with the loss of the Rogers Locomotive works when their former owner suddenly closed them, declaring that he was rich enough. The works, however, were saved to the city and are now running to the limit, as are the works of the American Locomotive company, which are almost as important as the Rogers works.

The city lies on both banks of the Passaic river, which at the west end drops into one of the finest falls in the country. Until the last few years the water pouring over the falls was a sight worth seeing, but the diversion of the river's waters at its head for potable purposes for Newark has diminished the flow. The city contains a large foreign born population. Within the last few years the silk mills have largely filled up with men from southern Europe. Of the old class there is a very strong mixture of Scotch and English.

The city has attained much unpleasant notoriety within the last few years. It was dragged into the assassination of King Humbert of Italy owing to Bresci having lived there. The notorious gang of anarchists which in tests a section of the place kept the eyes of the world fastened on the Silk City for months. Several other untoward occurrences had the city's name linked to them, and for years the place has been more prominent in the news of the day than cities of many times its size.

In contradistinction to the unpleasant notoriety the city recently attained, it had the recompense of within the last few years bringing out two men of national importance. One was the late Vice President Garret A. Hobart, the other ex-Attorney General and possible future Supreme Court Justice John W. Griggs. Fortunately the monument to be erected by the city to Mr. Hobart is still unplaced. Had it been erected it would have been in the path of the fire.

EX-SENATOR HILL'S SILENCE

Says When He Has Anything to Say Knows How to Say It.

David B. Hill's arrival in New York the other day, immediately after the announcement by the leaders of the Greater New York Democracy that they intend to continue the war on Tammany until the organization is wiped out of existence, was regarded as significant, says the New York Herald.

"I have nothing to say about the election," said Mr. Hill when he stepped from the Albany train.

"What do you think of the plan of the Greater New York Democracy to start a new organization?" was asked.

"Not a word," repeated Mr. Hill. "How about Mr. Croker's defeat?"

"Now," said Mr. Hill, smiling, "when I have anything to say I know how to say it, but I have nothing at present, and it is useless to urge me."

Mr. Hill went to William F. Sheehan's law office, where he conferred with Mr. Sheehan in regard to the franchise tax suits and later took luncheon with him at the Downtown club, where he persisted in his refusal to talk. He went back to Albany without having seen John C. Sheehan or any of the other leaders of the Greater New York Democracy.

HE GOT THE SOAP.

A Missourian's Peculiar Request of George Gould.

While the special train of George Gould was on a side track in Missouri, says the New York Times, Mr. Gould stepped to earth to stretch his legs while waiting for a regular train to pass. It was in the more rugged part of the state, well away from civilization. A typical habitation of the district stopped a pair of emaciated mules near the train. He hailed Mr. Gould and said:

"Say, mister, we have a new baby at my dugout, an' we ain't got no soap. My old woman is so stuck up over it that she's making me drive fourteen miles to town to get some yucca smellin' soap, an' I thought maybe you'd help me out by gettin' me a piece of soap outen one of them fancy cars."

Mrs. Gould, who overheard the request, had the porter give the man several pieces of soap wrapped in some towels and several articles of tinned delicacies. The man seemed much surprised at such generosity, and as he turned to drive homeward he shouted back to Mr. Gould:

"Say, mister, you all must be some relation to Santa Claus."

"THE HAND OF FATE"

[Original.]
Mr. Creswell had refused me his daughter because I had chosen literature for a profession. I left him dissatisfied, not only with him, but with my choice. Passing from the library to the drawing room, I informed Emma Creswell of her father's decision. Emma had no more confidence in the productivity of literature than her father, but she loved me and wanted me, and me only, for her husband. She was wealthy in her own right, but I had no intention of marrying a girl who would feel when she married me that she would be obliged to support me.

"Abandon literature," she said to me, "take a position in father's office, and all will go well."

"I love literature, and so long as I have hopes of success I would not be satisfied to abandon it. You and I would both regret such a course."

"Perhaps you are right," she replied thoughtfully. "You had better test your ability to please the public."

I went away wishing that Emma was not so practical. Nevertheless I determined to abide by her wishes. I had finished a novel which I knew was as good a piece of work as I was capable of doing. It had the freshness of youth in it, and the plan afforded just such opportunities as my abilities most needed. I determined to use every effort to secure its publication and stand or fall in literature on its success or failure. I tried half a dozen publishers before my work, "The Hand of Fate," was accepted. Then I spent several weeks reading the proofs. By the time it was published I had spent a year writing it, six months revising it and the rest of two years getting it into print. It paid at the rate of $150 a month for my labor, I would receive $3,000. Should the work be a great success I might make as much as $50,000. I had a strong conviction that it would be a success.

The book was finally launched. At the end of the first month I inquired of the publisher what the sales had been and was told that 1,500 copies had been disposed of. My royalty on the proceeds was $225. I was very much encouraged. The second month the sales dropped to 500 copies. I was considerably cast down, but my publishers told me of a number of novels that had paid largely after lying on the shelves of bookstores for a year or more. Then came January and February, and my royalty for the first was $150 and for the second 25 cents.

I went to Emma plunged in profound grief, admitted my failure and was ready to take to the ignoble calling of business. Emma's eyes filled with tears.

"Wait," she said. "This is a very dull season for books, I hear. Perhaps the sales will be better in the spring, when people begin their light summer reading."

I was ready to catch at a straw and concluded to take her advice.

One day toward the end of March I was surprised to receive a note from my publishers that the sales of "The Hand of Fate" had suddenly picked up and a new edition had been ordered. In May I was informed that the second edition had been exhausted and a third was in press. I was delighted. "The Hand of Fate" is working out a career for me," I exclaimed. "I shall follow the profession I love."

One thing, however, I could not understand—while one edition after another was being sold and I was daily expecting to be pointed out in clubs and drawing rooms as the new literary light I went everywhere without exciting the least attention. On the 1st of July I received a check for $1,243, being my royalties on 12,430 copies. I was wild with delight. Going to Emma, I waved the bit of paper over her head triumphantly.

Having done so well financially, I made up my mind to spend the summer in the mountains with Emma. After an enjoyable outing I returned to the city expecting to find some word from my publishers as to the sales of "The Hand of Fate." Among the numerous letters at my rooms there was nothing about the book. I called on the publishers, who looked the matter up for me and reported a sale of five copies since their last statement. The information acted upon me like a cold shower bath on a winter morning.

In November Emma returned. Before her arrival I wrote my publishers for information and received the following reply:

There have been no sales of "The Hand of Fate" since August. The very peculiar reception of this book by the public has puzzled us beyond measure. In the case of new novels we usually sell from one to two thousand copies when the work is issued. Then if the book gains in favor the sales are coincident with more or less talk about the book. In no case have we sold 12,000 copies of a novel without its becoming known and talked about by the public.

I took this letter to Emma. She read it and turned to me with a great deal of sympathy in her kind eyes. "I am at least glad that you tried the experiment. You will be the better fitted to work in another field."

I entered her father's counting room. That was fifteen years ago. He has retired, and I am at the head of the business. Recently my wife and I decided to move into a larger house. Making a preliminary tour over the house to see what could be disposed of I came upon a box of books. I called my wife.

"My dear," I asked, "what is in that box?"

"That is 'The Hand of Fate' that made a prosperous man of you. I couldn't bear that it should be all disappointment with you, so I bought 10,000 copies."

Notes of Interest to Men of the Heisey Table Glass and Everett Bottle Factory.

The following Newark glassworker notes appeared in Saturday's Pittsburgh Commoner and Glassworker:

* Among the new arrivals in Newark, O., at the E. H. Everett Glass Works are: W. Marfield, T. Kane, H. Ale, T. Ale, R. Porter, C. Doughty, J. Fleming, P. Kimble and J. Horner.

We are working every day at Heisey's with the exception of last week, when we had to lay off a few turns on account of the gas, as the cold weather cut us short.

The bowling team of the Heisey glass works consists of the following brothers: "Talk-to-em" Kelly, "Red Horse" Monday, "Shippery" Graesser, "Fish Globe" Hunter and "South Paw" Powell. The team put it all over the Everett team in the final games of the series, and so the Everett boys have to come up with the oysters. The Everett team is: Rogers, Deutsch, Fitterer, Haman and Stevens.

The two star Heisey bowlers, Henry Retzer and Robert Oldfield, having a very pressing engagement, would not fill their places on the team. H. Retzer's feet got cold waiting so he made his appearance while the game was going on and was a spectator, and Robert Oldfield was handed his release as he could not give a reasonable excuse for his absence.

Davis, our new and enterprising coroner, wishes to become publicly known that with him there will be no delay and no blunders in ascertaining the cause of death in any case and that everything found in the pockets of the deceased will be promptly handed over to friends. He is a good natured, sympathetic man, and you can't do better than patronize him.

Dr. Henry Jackson, who has lately set up his office here, assures us that, while he will devote most of his time to family practice, he will nevertheless stand ready at any hour of the day or night to extract bullets, trepan skulls, set broken limbs, dress gunshot or knife wounds or do any other business in the surgical line.

We understand that Major Caboon, who has been no friend of ours for the last six months, is spreading the report that the postmaster general has asked for our resignation. In reply we would say that the major is a slick, sleek liar, but we lay nothing up against him. We are as solid in the postoffice as any mountain on its base, and we can't be rooted out by anything less than a revolution.

A stranger in town seemed to be riled the other day on hearing that we had been elected mayor of the Gulch for the fourth time, and he called at The Kicker office to argue the matter. Mr. Johnson, as he gave his name, now lies in the town hospital, and his list of casualties includes cuts, bumps, sprains, bruises, swellings and a broken kneecap. We carry no chip on our shoulder, but our wheels are always greased for business.

Colonel Roseman has stopped his paper again and brings forward the old excuse that we are crowding out murder items to give place to stuff not worth reading. As we have published an average of twenty-five in each issue for the last year and as we can't make them to order, we rather think we shall let the colonel go his way and subscribe to a Sunday school paper.

People who are ailing should not forget that Dr. John Martin was one of the first medical men to settle here. We personally know that he can tell smallpox from measles and that when a patient is able to sit up in bed and hold a gun on a straight line he pronounces him cured and his visits cease.

We have no complaint to make against the editor of the Blue Hills Sentinel for editorially declaring that we are a man of bluff and brag, but what we complain of is the way he got out of the back door of his office and into the woods when we paid him a fraternal visit the other day. We are always willing to talk things over.

As owner of Heisey's Opera House, and having been to a considerable expense in the way of repairs, we would kindly ask the boys who may become dissatisfied with any play on the boards to shoot at the actors instead of the lamps or ceiling. Most actors deserve to be shot at anyhow, while any injury to our house cannot possibly raise the standard of the profession. This thing should be looked at philosophically.

M. QUAD.

a 75c. bottle will smoke an ordinary size butchering.

Smoking meats without fire has proved such a decided success that even those who were opposed a few years ago to make light of the idea are now using Krausers' Liquid Extract of Smoke. The liquid extract does away with the risks and inconveniences attending the old smoke-house process. Meat smoked by the new method has a genuine, delicious smoke flavor, it remains moist and in a perfect state of preservation and is not infested with insects. The extract is made by distilling the smoke from hickory and maple wood and it is absolutely harmless. The makers, D. Krauser & Bro., of Milton, Pa., will send free to anyone, on request, printed matter about methods of curing and smoking all kinds of meats.

OSTEOPATHY
A Reply to Criticism of the Science Recently Published in the New York Sun.

(Communicated.)

There appeared in your daily issue of Friday, February 7th, an article credited to the New York Sun, in which the osteopaths and the science of osteopathy were unjustly condemned. To those who know something of the real merits of this method of treating disease, some of the statements made in this article will appear ludicrous, but in the minds of those who are unacquainted with the science of osteopathy, it will create a false impression. That article was written by some one who either knew nothing of osteopathy, or else wilfully through prejudice, misrepresented the facts. It is entirely misleading and nothing could be further from the truth. In the first place, the osteopaths do not ask the right to practice medicine, and therefore should not be subject to medical laws or be required to pass examinations before State boards composed entirely of medical men. Again, the recognized schools of osteopathy have a standard of education equal to, if not in advance of, that set up by the medical schools of this country. Indeed, there is no school of medicine on earth that emphasizes the need of a thorough knowledge of anatomy and physiology as do the osteopathic schools. But as these branches are studied from a different standpoint by the osteopath, it stands to reason that medical men who know nothing about osteopathy would not be competent to examine the osteopath. You can readily see how any one passing a satisfactory examination before a medical board in the above branches could be allowed to practice osteopathy, even though he knew nothing whatever of the science. Hence we ask for independent legislation. Again, the article referred to, goes on to say that "osteopathy is only a rudimentary form of massage, but that the osteopath tells his patient that a small bone in the head or spine is out of place, and that he will pummel it into place at $100 a month." Well, the writer of this article must have had one of the bones of his head dislocated and pressing upon his brain. The fact is, as Rev. Sam Jones says, that "Massage is no more like osteopathy than carrying a horse is like playing a piano." Neither does the masseur, as a general thing, have any knowledge of anatomy, and still there is some good in massage treatment. No osteopath charges $100 a month for his services. Oh, no! osteopathy is not a passing fad, as evidenced by the fact that sixteen states have already enacted laws recognizing osteopathy as a science, and regulating the practice of the same. Osteopathy is here to stay, for it is founded upon truth, and no truth when it is once disclosed is ever extinguished by the mind of man.

A CITIZEN

Objects to Canal Site for Market House and Pleads to Save Buckeye Lake.

(Communicated.)

I notice in your issue of February 15 that Mr. J. L. Styrton of Newark, has made application to the State Canal Commission for the road bed of the Ohio Canal in Newark from First to Fourth streets, on which ground, including the banks on either side, he proposes to erect a market house and other buildings not specified. I don't know what the people generally think of this plan of Styrton's, but my idea would be (if this part of canal is to be abandoned) to make a street of it as it originally was before the canal was dug through it. The street was then called the Old Columbus road.

This canal bed would make a grand avenue right through the center of the city and there would be in a short time, no doubt, many business houses built upon it. As to the water from Buckeye Lake it would be an easy matter to run it into the Racoon creek.

As to going away with Buckeye Lake it would not only be an outrage, and entail a great loss to the Newark, Columbus and Buckeye Lake electric railroad, but upon the people at large, who have been looking forward to the completion of this road to the Lake and the making of this body of water and surroundings the greatest and finest pleasure resort in the state of Ohio.

If you use Consumers' Beer you will want no other.

NEWARK HOME

Of the Home Guards of America Hold Interesting Session and Confer Degrees on Seven.

Newark Home No. 34, Home Guards of America, held an interesting session in their lodge room on Thursday evening, the occasion being the conferring of the degrees of the order on seven candidates, which were exemplified in a highly commendable manner by the new degree staff. The lodge room was well filled with members who were well pleased with the manner in which the work was exemplified. The new lodge goat conducted himself very nicely during the ceremonies and all think that he is well worth the money paid for him. After the interior work had been finished the team gave a number of very fine drills, which were highly appreciated by all present. After an exceedingly interesting meeting all departed for their homes, glad to know that Newark Home is coming to the front with the other orders of the city.

AMUSEMENTS.

"The Wrong Mr. Wright" is a farce in three acts by George H. Broadhurst. This piece preceded "What Happened to Jones" and "Why Smith Left Home" by several seasons and was played throughout the country by Roland Reed, it being his greatest success. The piece will be presented tonight at the Auditorium by Mr. John Allison who plays the part of "Seymour Sites." He was the "Jones" three seasons in "What Happened to Jones." The following is the story of "The Wrong Mr. Wright." "Mr. Seymour Sites" having been robbed by his clerk "Bailey" starts in pursuit of him in person, having previously instructed a firm of detectives to endeavor to catch the delinquent. This agency puts "Henrietta Oliver," a lady detective on the track as they think that a woman is more likely than a man to capture a defaulter who is sure to be spending money freely. "Sites" thinks it better to change his name and signs the register at the hotel as "Mr. Wright." This being the name the thief has taken, the complications arising from the chase of "The Wrong Mr. Wright" form the material of the three acts of the piece.

The strong cast is made up of the following well known players: Mr. Jobu Allison, Miss Veta Henderson, Maude Allison, Florence Marion Ada, Morton H. G. Hockey, George L. Kennedy, Jas. Newton Drew, Charles E. Flynn, Sydney Reynolds, Thomas Hodgmen and others.

"Two Little Vagrants" Edward C. White's highly successful scenic drama, will appear at the Auditorium on Tuesday, Feb. 18th. Neva Harrison will again be seen in the famous part of Fan-Fan, and Miss Ray Scott, formerly of Stuart Robson's company, will play the part of Claude.

"A Royal Prisoner," which will be presented for the first time at the Auditorium on Friday, Feb. 21, is a fascinating play. The theme is bright and natural, the action quick, and the charming plot is so admirably unfolded that the interest is maintained until the great climax in the last act, when the Empress, in a royal rage at the deception practiced upon her, is about to take Alexander's life. Mr. James and his splendid company it will be remembered, had a long and successful run in Buffalo at the Lyceum Theatre during the Pan-American Exposition last spring, and both press and public pronounced it "the best thing in town."

Manager Rosebraugh informs us that he is negotiating with the managers of "The Girl From Chilli" company for one night. He says that there is very little chance of the company having any open dates. No matter, let them know we are on earth. We may catch them on their return to the east. You must remember 'twas wind that made Chicago. Keep blowing your horn.
